OTA Executive Director

June 10, 2008

Dear OTA Members and Orthopaedic Colleagues,

On behalf of the OTA I would like to invite you to visit The City of Denver. Located 5,280 feet above the sea, in an area that radiates 300 days of sunshine a year, the Mile High City offers an ideal fall climate for this exciting educational event. The scientific meeting is located at the New Hyatt Convention Center Hotel, ideally situated in the center of downtown Denver. A multitude of unique local restaurants and attractions are all within easy walking distance of the meeting, including the Colorado History Museum, the Denver Art Museum, The 16th Street Pedestrian Mall, and Coors Field - home of the Colorado Rockies. For the urban adventurer, running and bike paths that follow Cherry Creek and the Platte River are just down the block from the hotel. The fall offers an opportunity to catch the changing of the aspen leaves in the mountains, an uncrowded adventure to Rocky Mountain National Park to view the resident elk herds, or a round of golf at the foot of the Rockies.

We look forward to your attendance at the 2008 annual meeting and the opportunity to introduce you to Denver, the city that boasts the perfect blend of outdoor adventure and urban sophistication.

Sincerely,

Steve Morgan, MD
